

Hidden Treasures

Spring bonnets are just some of the many craft projects created by students in Hidden Treasures classrooms.

Dance affords students a way to express themselves through a variety of styles and movement.

A chorus line? HT dancers are a singular sensational every time!

Hidden Treasures is an arts education program designed to enhance the quality of life for developmentally disabled people by nurturing creativity, self expression, and self esteem.

The program offers a wide range of classes from creative arts and writing to music and dance. Hidden Treasures is funded by CLC Foundation (a not-for-profit providing quality trust services and financial support) and by private donations. The brainchild of CLC Resident Manager Lucille McCarthy and Carolyn Scarcello, the program launched in 1997 with 30 CLC consumers. Since that time, the program has been embraced by this community and experienced tremendous growth. Today, Hidden Treasures has 110 students with developmental disabilities who come from seven agencies. Classes are held at the Richard G. Rosenthal JCC in Pleasantville, NY.

In dance sessions, students express themselves through various styles such as tap and modern dance. Arts and crafts offers creative opportunities with flower arranging, woodworking, and jewelry making, while studio arts broaden appreciation of the fine arts through painting and sketching.

Drama and song present a unique opportunity for participants to experience stage performance. Confidence and self esteem are nurtured through improvisation, stage presence and theatrical instruction. Creative writing develops skill through the written word and photographs.

"The program is dynamic," says Lucille. "We want our students to have choices, so we are always looking for new ideas. The latest addition to our class roster is Tai Chi." ■
